

East Palo Alto Today

Providing news that is relevant, informative and critical

East Palo Alto and Belle Haven

Would you like to make a difference in a local community as you use your skills and gain new ones? Well, you can do just that by working with the East Palo Alto Center for Community Media. At the center, you'll have an opportunity to interview community newsmakers and local residents, take news photos and videos and write news articles for the East Palo Alto Today newspaper and its website.

You'll also have the opportunity to assist in laying out issues of the newspaper.

We are especially interested in students who can work independently on a deadline and as part of a team, students who can accept assignments as well as generate story ideas and students who have an eye for detail and are interested in getting factual information as well as opinions.

We are looking for students who are interested in a part-time internship during the school year and/or over the summer. The hours and days of the internship are negotiable.

See the East Palo Alto Center for Community Media's website at www.epamedia.org and the EPA Today website at www.epatoday.org. If you are a self-starter and you're interested in working with news and information, call Henrietta at (650)289-9699 or send an email to epatoday@epatoday.org
